VIENNA CONFERENCE—PARLIAMENTARY DISCUSSION—REASONABLENESS OF THE RUSSIAN PROPOSALS.—The last steamer from across the water brings the intelligence that Earl Grey has given notice in the House of Lords of his intention to offer a resolution declaring that the proposals made by Russia were of such a character as might properly have been accepted to by the Allied powers. His resolution will of course elicit a discussion of the whole subject touching the conduct of the Vienna conference; and we think in such a debate it will be difficult to arrive at the conclusion that the course of Russia has been censurable, and that her demands are unreasonable. The Russian negotiators submitted the following propositions as their basis for a treaty of peace:

1. To place the liberties of the Moldo-Wallachians under the joint protectorate of the four powers. In the language of the London Times, "the Russian plenipotentiaries showed a singular (!) but laudable zeal that the franchises of the people of these provinces should in no wise be abridged." On this point the Allies were obliged to confess that concessions could no further go.

2. To place the navigation of the Danube on the same footing with that of all the other navigable rivers of Europe, placing its freedom likewise under the protection of a common guarantee, with the express understanding that no Russian fort was to be built at any of its outlets. Here, also, the opposing diplomatists could find nothing more to demand.

3. To open to the military flags of all nations the military passage of the Dardanelles, with the privilege awarded to Turkey of closing those passages against the military flags of all nations, at her pleasure.

These terms the Allies affect to regard as unsatisfactory and worthless—such as they ought to be and will not accept. An arrangement of this kind would not, they allege, reduce the preponderance of Russian power in the Black Sea, and therefore they refuse to enter into it. The Allies thus announce to the world that it is to reduce the maritime and commercial power of Russia, and not to vindicate the nationality of Turkey, for which they are waging war on Russia. This truth is rendered more apparent by the fact that the Allies refused to touch upon the negotiation of the fourth point, which relates to the protection of the Christians in Turkey, until the third point was first adjusted. They knew very well that, on that point, there was no room for a difference, because they could not decently refuse to extend to the Christians the protection proposed to be guaranteed by Russia.

We cannot but think, that a Parliamentary discussion of the Vienna Congress, in all its details, and the principles on which the demands of the Western Powers are predicated, will result in creating a public sentiment in England, where discussion is free and open, that will force the Allies to conclude a peace with Russia on a just and reasonable basis. The public journals in England are doing good service in the business of diffusing correct views among the people on this important subject; and we quote the following article from the Manchester Examiner as a specimen. That paper says:

We have not the smallest pretext for fairly charging Russia with the responsibility of rendering peace impossible. War can gain us nothing that Russia was not willing to concede; and we are to continue the war to force Russia to reduce her navy we have failed to show how that navy is either dangerous or preponderant. What preponderance is there in the Black Sea but our own?—for Prince Gortschakoff states, in one of the protocols submitted, that the whole number of ships maintained by Russia in the Black Sea would not suffice to transport 20,000 men to any point on the Turkish coast. What is such a force as this contrasted with that which France and England habitually maintain in the Mediterranean, and which could be made to reach Constantinople as soon as the Russian fleet could traverse the Euxine from Sebastopol? Never was human credulity more imposed upon than by the hyperbolic declamation by which Russian preponderance in the Black Sea has been denounced. Is not our naval supremacy there at this moment a proof that this preponderance is a mere phrase and chimera, not a reality? We are about to renew all the horrors of this disastrous war for the attainment of objects already attained. We are supreme ourselves in the Black Sea, and can be so as long or as often as we choose, and yet we madly persist in blindly urging on this crusade against Russia, as if all these palpable truths were the reverse of truth. The failure of the Vienna conference has afforded fresh excitement to the false medium through which everything connected with the name of Russia is regarded; but the record of the proceedings, as detailed in our Parliamentary papers, affords the best evidence that there was quite as much of the spirit of conciliation and moderation displayed by the representatives of the Czar as by the plenipotentiaries of Austria, France, and England.

The Government gives notice that it is prepared to pay the awards of commissioners under the convention between the United States and Great Britain.

CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY IN LEWIS COUNTY, MO.—We have, on several occasions, referred to the Christian labors in this city, of Elder D. P. Henderson, of Missouri. In one of these notices we spoke of the high position of this excellent man, as a philanthropist. His labors of love toward the human race have not only been of the earnest, sincere, and ennobling character that belong to true-hearted men, but they have been highly appreciated by the people of Missouri. We also referred in our notice to Elder Henderson's project for a Christian University, and we purpose now to say something on the admirable location and plan of that Institution.

The Christian University was chartered in 1853 by the Legislature of Missouri. The charter is a liberal one, containing all the provisions usually granted to the most favored schools of learning. No limit is fixed to the amount of cash or stocks that may be owned by the University. Two-thirds of the Board of Trustees are required to be members of the Church of Christ, resident in the State of Missouri.

The University is located near the town of Canton, in Lewis county, Mo. The Institution is west and southwest of Canton and the city of De Soto, one mile from the Mississippi river, forty miles above Hannibal, twenty-five miles below Keokuk, and two hundred miles above St. Louis. Lewis county is on the northeast border of the State, and is destined to be one of the most thrifty counties in Missouri. Its soil is remarkably fertile; it is prairie on rock and is watered by the rivers Fabius and Wyaconda. The census returns of 1850 show that it is a fine region for cattle, grain crops, grasses, and sheep. The beautiful bend of the Mississippi river, on the eastern border of the county, adds to the picturesque character of the region. From the dome of the University the eye commands a view of Keokuk, in Iowa, Quincy, in Illinois, Monticello, the county seat of Lewis, and a steamer may be seen in its whole run of forty-five miles from Keokuk to Quincy.

The trustees of the Christian University own fifty-eight acres of land, extending back from the bluff of the Mississippi. On the opposite side of the river, they own a fractional quarter section of land and the ferry rights at that point between Illinois and Missouri. They have built a steam ferry-boat, which is already making a fine dividend upon the investment. The proceeds go to the University. The hunting and fishing facilities are remarkably good, thus securing the students healthful and innocent recreation and exercise.

The people of Missouri have liberally responded to the efforts of Elder D. P. Henderson for building up this great University. Lewis county raised a sum that is ample for finishing the building. It will accommodate 500 students. The chapel will comfortably seat 1,500 persons and 2,000 can be crowded in its spaces. In addition to the funds for finishing the edifice, $60,000 toward the endowment have been raised, and this sum is drawing an interest of six per cent. The organization of the faculty will not be made until the entire endowment of $150,000 is secured. Nearly one-half of this is already secured and we should not suppose that it would take such a man as Elder Henderson long to raise the remainder. The object is so commendable, the purpose so great, and Mr. Henderson has such capacity for winning the love and confidence of all who form his acquaintance that we look upon the endowment of the Christian University as one of the certainties of the future. If any word of ours were needed to aid this noble enterprise we should cheerfully give it; for he that gives toward securing educational facilities, accompanied by religious training, does much to perpetuate republican institutions, to promote the public welfare, and to secure the happiness of the people. No other investments can secure such healthful, permanent, and substantial blessings. The Empire State of this Confederacy is at this moment deriving more benefit from De Witt Clinton's early recognition of the claims of education, and his enlarged liberality for securing its advantages to the children of the State, than from those magnificent projections for facilitating intercommunication between the seaboard and the Great West which have linked his name with immortality. Great, and deservedly great as is the fame of that immortal statesman, founded upon his far-reaching sagacity, the ability of his counsels, and the success of his schemes for enlarging the prosperity of the State of New York by internal improvements, if we could envy any part of his well and honestly earned reputation, we should covet that which rests upon the system of public instruction in the Empire State. That is a basis that will outlive the Erie canal.

The Christian University of Missouri is one of the noblest enterprises of the day. It embraces within its range powers for a thorough education in every desirable field of learning, and the religion of the Bible is a portion of its means of developing the true and well regulated forces of the intellect. For we cannot but believe that the mere polishing of the intellect without religious training is the preparation of an armed madman. The statistics of crime in France, compared with those of England or America, amply confirm this view. And, in addition to all the other merits of the Christian University of Missouri, there is one that stands conspicuous. We allude to the ample system of instruction for females in this institution. Under the arrangements of this University, girls who may desire to do so may range through the same departments of learning that are open to the other sex. The buildings for the instruction of the sexes are separate, but the courses of instruction are the same to all, of both sexes, who desire them. This is a proper basis for human improvement. No one can give any good reason why a girl who wishes learning should not gratify her wishes for education as a man is praised for doing. This very feature of the Christian University commends the institution strongly to our favor, but its entire arrangements are worthy of the commendation, confidence, and favor of all true men. In fact, the female college is considered such an essential element of progress, and is really so vital to the philanthropic movements of this age, that it will be the first object of the solicitude of the trustees. Those girls who may wish to confine their studies to that arbitrary and barbarous circle called "woman's sphere" can do so, but those who may desire to walk hand in hand with all the masters of the past, through all departments of learning, will find every facility for the object guaranteed to them in this University. We are pleased to learn that the institution will commence its labors with a professorship devoted to anatomy, physiology, and hygiene, sciences in which every educated female should be thoroughly instructed.

A very few years' experience of the advantages of this institution will satisfy the people of Missouri, Illinois, and Iowa that it is worth infinitely more than its cost to them. Indeed, the whole West must feel its benefits and we hold that Kentucky is largely interested in its success. But let not Missouri miss its uses, even if she should have to shoulder the whole burden of the endowment. She will possess a treasure far more valuable than the placers of California. The portions of Illinois and Iowa contiguous to the northeastern portion of Missouri will enjoy the advantages of the Christian University.

The preparatory department of this University will open this fall or the following spring. Professor H. H. White, formerly of Bacon College in this State, has been elected Professor of Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, Civil Engineering, &c. Prof. R. A. Grant is Professor of Mathematics. These are all the officers that have been, as yet, elected. The first department of the University is a Female College. The foundation of that building will be laid next year. From what we know of its projection, we are confident in saying that it will be one of the most beautiful and commodious buildings of its kind in the West.

We wish Mr. Henderson abundant success in his noble efforts to establish this University. It will be a monument of the progress of the Christian philanthropy of the age, of the enlightened wisdom that projected it, and of the enlarged liberality of the Great West that fostered and sustained the effort. And we have no doubt that it will prove to be a permanent blessing to the land and one of the great securities that will bind the people to the perpetuation of the free principles of this republic.

THE EXILE AMIDST THE GRAVES.

BY THE HERMIT OF ST. EIRENE.

"Das Grab ist tief und still."—V. SALIS.

The night is near. I sit alone beneath
The shade of willows, weeping o'er the grave
Of one I loved, a friend whose soul hath gone
To better life than this world can give.
The falling leaves around me tell that soon
The trees shall stand with naked branches, stripped
Of all that crown them to exultant seem to mourn
The loss of fragrance, never more regained.
And birds in melancholy plaintive lay
Appear to lull themselves to rest and sleep,
In mourning still the past departed day.
The noise of toil is heard no more, and all
The weary workmen, homeward bound, they go
To seek the gladning smiles of those they love.

The humblest home hath joys and pleasures sweet
To hearts that love.
I sit alone and weep.
To me no home is given. Friendless here,
Amidst the graves of those departed, averts
My heart in grief. My weary soul doth long
For Death, as nature seems to breathe but Death
And Death around me.

I ever love to dwell
Amidst the graves, and hear the silent voice
That seems to rise from depths of rest and speak
To me of peace and joy without their vaults.
Oh, here beneath the humblest stone as well
As 'neath the splendid mausoleum rests
A brother. Vainly, display may try
To cover dust and ashes, marble vaults
And pillars vainly show the different ranks
That here on earth will separate the rich,
The highly stationed ones, from those that were Forever struggling, bread to win to still
Their hunger.

Oh heart,
My heart! what ails thyself, and why dost thou
Compel my tears in grief to flow? Thy pang
Will soon be ended. Loneliness no more
Within the grave shall burden thee, and soon
The voice of Death, the peaceful angel, will Respond to call thyself to port for home.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April, 1855.

The circuit court, the county court, and the city court, are all in full blast. A large crowd of bachelors were in the county court yesterday listening attentively to the case of one Johnson, to compel him to provide for the sustenance of a juvenile, whose mother charges Johnson with being the father. The case has been tried before, but Johnson was granted a new trial.

ARRIVAL OF THE AFRICA.—This steamship reached Halifax last evening with Liverpool dates to the 26th ult. An abstract of her news is given under the telegraph head. It will be seen from it that the Vienna Conference is to be re-opened. Consols and cotton had advanced.

HEALTH OF NEW ORLEANS.—A private dispatch from New Orleans, dated on the 5th, from a highly respectable and reliable gentleman, to a relative in this city, says: "Cholera not bad, I shall start on the 13th or 25th inst."

D. P. Blair and George Whitman, U. S. mail agents, have been arrested in New Orleans on charges of opening letters in that post-office, contrary to the laws of the United States. This accusation is based on the recent charge of Judge McCaleb, of the U. S. District of La., to the grand jury, wherein the Judge held that mail agents who were guilty of opening private correspondence, after it had been entrusted to the custody of the post-office, no matter what the motive, subjected themselves to the penalty of the law. The letters opened caused the arrest of the post-master at New Orleans.

The heavy rains last week extended to nearly all sections of the country—east and west and north and south, and the prospects for good crops are now much improved, even in those parts where the drouth had affected them badly.

The river was falling slowly yesterday with 5 feet water in the canal. The Mississippi and upper tributaries were still rising on Saturday.

NEWS ITEMS.

The ship Leopold I, Capt. Geberding, arrived at New York from Antwerp, having on board 367 passengers, the majority of whom are reported to be paupers by the American consul at Antwerp. The vessel, by orders of the Commissioners of Emigration, has been stopped at quarantine until the proper authorities investigate the truth of the charges against the passengers, which, if found true, will probably cause their immediate return to the port from whence they came at the expense of the consignees. The Leopold I has a cargo of bricks on board and is bound for Havana.

The steamship Arago, which sailed on Saturday from New York for Havre, took out 215 passengers and $459,621 in specie. Among the passengers were Prince Jerome Bonaparte, G. W. Kendall of the N. O. Picayune, Count de Diau, and Hon. A. Vail.

Claims Against Texas.—The holders of unregistered claims against the State of Texas should remember that the time for registering such claims expires on the first day of August next, and that if they are not then registered they will be barred.

West Point Military Academy.—The annual examination of the West Point Military Academy commenced on Friday last. The present graduating class started four years ago with over fifty members, but the rigors of military education have diminished the number to thirty-four.

Breadstuffs under the Reciprocity Treaty.—The Inspector General of Canada informs the collector of customs that the term "breadstuffs of all kinds," as well under the reciprocity treaty as under the proclamation of the 15th of August, 1850, is confined solely to the manufactured article, and does not extend to bread baked, or to biscuit, crackers, cakes, or similar manufactured articles, which, when not specially exempted under the tariff, are chargeable with an ad valorem duty of 12 1/2 per centum.

Army Contract.—We understand Col. J. Durrell Greene has contracted with the United States Government to furnish his patent breech-loading carbine to one of the new cavalry regiments. Col. Greene's invention is certainly an ingenious contrivance, and we are glad that the Government recognizes its merits.—Boston Adv.

Effect of the Liquor Law.—Several of our rectifiers have removed their establishments to different points on the opposite side of the river, convenient to this city. A very extensive distillery has also been erected in the village of Chippewa, in part by a resident of this city.

Buff. Com. Adv., Thursday.

BOUNTY LANDS.—The Commissioner of the Land-Office has decided that engineers, coal-heavers, firemen, and boys, employed in the navy of the United States, are seamen, and are entitled to bounty lands under the several acts. The Union has the following:

Total number of applications received under the act of March 3, 1855—158,800
Do. number enveloped, briefed, &c.... 75,800
Do. number acknowledged..... 75,000

The foregoing is in addition to the examination of revolutionary, navy, and invalid claims for pensions, and cases under the acts of 1850 and 1852.

Issuing of Bounty Land Warrants.—Yesterday the first issue was made from the Pension-Office of bounty land warrants under the act of March 3, 1855. There were about 1,100 in all issued, of 160 and 120-acre warrants. A warrant of 160 acres was forwarded to the President of the United States for military services rendered by him during the Mexican war. A similar warrant was forwarded to ex-President Tyler, for military services during the late war with England. Hon. Wm. L. Marcy, Secretary of State, received an 80-acre warrant, for military services in the same war, he having already received a bounty of 80 acres under the act of 1850.

DIED.

Suddenly yesterday morning (4th inst.), at Grahampton, Meade county, Ky., CARRIE S., wife of Orrille M. Anderson. Sad indeed is the task of paying the last tribute of fond affection to the memory of the loved dead. The remembrance of joyous hours passed with her, whose form now lies in the icy grasp of death, brings forth the heart's tears, and unavailing grief can but give its full offering of sympathy to meekly bear this overwhelming affliction.

Cut off in the rosy morn of life, when every thing that gives to life its happiness was placed within her grasp, her pure soul has fled to its Maker, and her innocent babe, scarce breathing the stifling air of earth, has gone before to welcome her to the realms of blessedness.

Kind mistress, fond mother, loving wife, uniting the attributes of a Christian to the womanly virtues, relentless death could show no pity to thy friends, but spared thee its sting! Gently, as the new-born babe sleeps its first sleep, she sank into the embrace of death, and the unconscious mother knew not that the loved form she watched so well had lost its priceless treasure, until long after the freed soul rejoiced before the Redeemer, or perhaps sorrowfully hovered over the bereaved ones, wistfully pining to assuage the deep grief her loss would cause.

Embedded with all the loved characteristics which should adorn the female mind, Carrie attracted around her a circle of friends, whose sincere sorrow will testify the depth of their affection. Early trained in the precepts of piety, the few fanes which nature gave to her were earnestly cherished and chastened by the desire of walking in the paths of the righteous, and no unkind word or harsh act can serve as a reproach to her memory. Peace to thy ashes, dear Carrie, for thy loss will long be felt, and thy memory cherished by those whom thou hast left for a better world.

ARRIVAL OF THE AFRICA.

HALIFAX, June 5.
The steamer Africa arrived at half past 4 o'clock this afternoon, with Liverpool dates of the 26th.

The Vienna conference is to be reopened. A secret expedition is preparing in the Crimea.

The siege is unchanged. Gen. Pellessier contemplates an attack against the Russians in the field.

The motion of a want of confidence in the House of Commons was unsuccessful (?).

An engagement had taken place before the Flagstaff battery, in which the French destroyed the Russian outworks.

The conference was reported upon on Monday, the 28th.

On the 16th, Count Buol had an interview with Lord Westmoreland. Count Bourgoynay suggested that the members of the conference meet again, but the French and English ministers were unable to give an answer. It is understood that, if they consent, Count Buol will again attempt to arrange the third point.

Liverpool Cotton Market, May 25.—The circular of Milligan, Evans, & Co. quotes the cotton market as uninfluenced by an extraordinary action of speculative and export demand; the sales for the week footing up 153,000 bales, of which 7,500 bales were taken on speculation. Under the influence of this active demand prices have advanced 1/4 to 1/2, but fair qualities have improved most. The quotations are—New Orleans fair 6 1/2, middling 5 1/2-5 5/8, upland fair 6 3/4. Sales to-day were 150,000, including 10,000 bales taken on speculation. The market closed buoyant.

The advices from Manchester were more favorable.

The breadstuff market was generally unchanged.

The provision market is firm, and prices have slightly advanced, the market closing steady. Lard was steady and prices unchanged. Sugar and coffee were firm but the market closed dull. Iron has been in active demand, and the market was buoyant; pig had slightly advanced.

London Money Market, May 26.—The money market is easier. United States securities are in good demand and better. Consols for money are quoted at 91 1/2, being an advance of 1/4 to-day.

The complexion of the returns throughout the State indicate the success of the prohibitory liquor law by a good majority.

TORONTO, June 5.
It is rumored that the British Government have ordered the continuance of the Seat of Government at Quebec, notwithstanding the decision of the Provincial Parliament to remove it to Toronto. The reason is possibly that the Cuban difficulty will place the British Government in antagonism with the United States, in which case the defensive will require the Government to remain at Quebec. The rumor is generally credited.

of that branch of our business, we will warrant our Oil pure
